

About The Free Press UK

The Free Press UK is an independent news and commentary platform launched in 2025 with a mission to challenge establishment narratives, expose institutional failures, and champion freedom of speech in modern Britain. With a sharp editorial voice and an unapologetically pro-British stance, we are committed to holding power to account and giving a voice to those silenced by political correctness and media bias.

Our Editorial Focus

We produce hard-hitting content on issues often ignored or downplayed by mainstream outlets. Our primary coverage areas include:

- The two-tier justice system in the UK
- Grooming gangs and institutional cover-ups
- Failures in policing and child protection
- Immigration, national security, and sovereignty
- The erosion of British values in education and culture
- Censorship, media bias, and free speech violations

Key Contributors

Our contributors write under editorial pseudonyms to maintain personal safety due to the controversial nature of our reporting. Each voice offers a distinct perspective within a shared editorial framework.

A.J. Thomas – Editor-in-Chief
Calm, measured, and fact-driven, A.J. delivers formal editorials and long-form investigative pieces.

Max Fenwick – Political Commentator
Fierce, sarcastic, and anti-establishment, Max writes passionate opinion pieces that resonate with Britain’s disaffected working class.

Rowan Blake – Cultural Critic
Literary, reflective, and values-oriented, Rowan covers education, family, and cultural decline.

N.G. Wallace – Historical Analyst
Wry and intellectual, Wallace draws from history to critique modern political decay.

Audience Overview

Our growing readership consists of:

- Politically engaged British citizens aged 25–65+
- Independent thinkers disillusioned by mainstream media
- Advocates for justice reform, free speech, and national sovereignty
- Readers from working-class and conservative backgrounds
